

True Press
Best Weapon
Of Democracy
Against foe

By EMIL L. TELFEL

The club-footed, evil little doctor of philosophy who controls the thoughts and opinions of 80 million people living in the darkness of Naziland frankly admits the influence of the newspaper. On the piano of a once-proud German press he has played, with cynical skill, the evil music which has lulled the German people into automatons who goose-step and shout "heil Hitler" at the bidding of their Nazi masters.

Dr. Goebbels knows that a dictatorship and a free press cannot exist together. What had been the shield of the people has become the sword of the state, wielded to keep them masters of the people in power.

Value In Democracy

The tragic prostitution of the press in a dictatorship is proof of its value in a democracy. If the press is a powerful weapon against the people in a dictatorship, it is an even more powerful weapon for the people in a democracy. And the greater a danger in which a free people find themselves, the greater is the service of the press.

War is the greatest danger that can menace a free people. The present war is a total war. That means it is a people's war. It is the people who are sacrificing in it, fighting in it, dying in it. They must also have a voice in it, and the only voice they have is that of the press. The people express themselves through the press, and they hear themselves through the press. The inarticulate voices of millions of individual Americans are welded by the newspapers into one voice which is heard by each individual, a voice which tells him why he is sacrificing, why he is fighting, why he is dying. And unless he knows, his heart will not be in the fight, and he will go down to defeat.

Press Influence

True, it is the function of the government to run the war and carry it to successful conclusion. But it must never be forgotten that in a democracy the government does not exist for itself, but for the people. It controls the people, but the control has been delegated by them, and they have every right to expect that it be exercised for their welfare. The people must have some means of exerting influence on the government, and such influence depends on information about the activities of the government. During a war, as the government broadens its control, accurate information for the people becomes increasingly important for public welfare.

And there you come to the first and most important achievement of the newspaper in public service.

The press keeps the people informed by reporting the news. In a democracy, what you don't know will destroy you!

True Information

Accurate information through the columns of the newspapers serves to prevent the government from drifting too far from the people. It is supposed to serve. Public opinion must be behind any activity of the government, especially during a war. Under present conditions, a war cannot be fought successfully without the support of public opinion, which in turn is supported by the press as it feeds the people the information needed to form opinion.

The press has performed its two traditional services of reporting the news and explaining it, although faced with mounting costs, priorities, decreased personnel, decreased revenue. These are problems that make it more and more difficult for the press to perform its functions. Under the circumstances, the press could be excused if it cut down on its primary function of news coverage. On the contrary, it has spread its coverage over the face of the entire globe, and has gathered news in the face of unbelievable hardships to reporters and camera men. Wherever the lighting of war strikes, the reporter is there, to write down faithfully the record of victory or defeat, and as fast as he writes, his stories are read by millions of people frantic for news.

Give Unequalled Coverage

American war correspondents, scattered all over the world, are giving the American people a coverage of the war that has never been equaled. These men, in the magnificent tradition of the newspaper profession, have thought of the news first, without regard for themselves. They have faced hunger, dirt, disease, bullets and bombs in their search for the truth that is so essential for preserving morale in a democracy. They have even given their lives.

DRAFT APPEAL CASES

One man was given a deferment and two others were continued in 1A by the area Board of Appeals in three cases taken before it by men classified by the New Oxford draft board. John Joseph Martz, Hanover R. 4, was placed in 2A for six months while Charles Henry Wolf, New Oxford, and Harry Edward Baugher, Wilcox, Pa., were continued in 1A.

ALLIES ON ROAD TO ROME

County Goes Over The Top In Bond Drive

Spurred on by their patriotic enthusiasm for an early Allied Nations' Victory, Adams countians roared down the home stretch of the Third War Bond campaign and smashed out a scorching "OVER THE TOP" message that will have repercussions on every Allied Battlefront.

The goal was $2,134,100, the greatest financial undertaking in the history of the county.

Shortly before 10 o'clock, this morning, some 14 hours before the deadline of midnight tonight Adams countians had answered the challenge to the joyful tune of $2,141,577.25 . . . an over-subscription of $7,477.25 . . . with more to come.

"Marvelous"

"It's marvelous. It's the most magnificent achievement I have ever seen. I cannot congratulate our good people too profusely. They've done a splendid job," was the comment of Edmund W. Thomas, chairman of the Adams County War Finance Committee. Mr. Thomas said he would issue a statement on Monday.

Volunteer workers, issuing agencies and others interested in the tremendous task of putting the bond drive "over the top" worked at fever pitch during the past three days and on Friday extended their efforts to reach the objective this morning. The result of their efforts is reflected in the overall figure, the unofficial total of bond purchases in this county since September 9.

Few Doubters

There were very few who doubted the possibility of reaching the goal after Friday's figures were announced revealing a deficit of $124,700.75. Those few believed that every available money source had been tapped, with a few exceptions, and that it would be almost impossible to sell $125,000 worth of bonds in 24 hours.

However, Adams countians responded to the appeal to buy extra bonds . . . and they did it in generous portions throughout the day.

Late Friday afternoon when two issuing agents reported a combined total of more than $67,000 members of the finance committee freely predicted that the county would go "over the top."

Sales of bonds continued at all issuing agencies throughout today and the county will be credited with everything officially recorded and postmarked up to midnight tonight.

Another unofficial report will be published Monday revealing sales throughout today.

Unknown But To God

Out in a jungle clearing on Guadalcanal is this grave—the effort of an "unknown burial detail" to honor an "unknown Yank." All the detail could tell about him was that he'd either been a Marine or a soldier and that he fell in the conquest of Guadalcanal. The cross of sticks is propped up with Jap machine gun clips. The inscription on the card reads: "Here lies a Marine or Soldier, Unknown but to God." (AP Wirephoto from the U. S. Marine Corps.)

CAPT. HUDSON RETIRED; HURT IN JAP SCRAP

Captain Edward D. Hudson, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Hudson, Jr., East Middle street, has been retired from active duty because of disability.

The local officer, who fractured his wrist and bones in his right hand in a struggle with a Jap in the jungles of New Guinea, has been spending a leave with his parents here.

Captain Hudson was leading a patrol in the jungles when his encounter with a Jap took place. Attacked before he had a chance to draw a weapon Hudson's only defense was a stout right cross, backed by 192 pounds of well trained brawn. The blow hurtled the Jap backward, breaking his neck and killing him instantly.

In Texas Hospital

Incapacitated home from the front, Captain Hudson spent some time at McCloskey hospital, Texas, before being given leave.

Announcement of his retirement was contained in the following order:

"Captain Edward D. Hudson, now at McCloskey General hospital, Temple, Texas, is relieved from assignment and duty with the Corps of Engineers Replacement Pool, Southwest Division Engineers, Dallas, Texas, and is assigned to the Corps of Engineers, Replacement Pool, Engineer Unit Training Center, Camp Claiborne, Louisiana.

Captain Hudson is granted five days' terminal leave effective September 18, 1943 and will proceed from McCloskey and general hospital to his home at Gettysburg, Pa., so as to arrive there at not later than September 26, 1943, on which date he is relieved from further active duty and will revert to inactive status."

If the use of his right hand can be restored Captain Hudson hopes to be reinstated as an instructor.

Nazis Plant Street Bombs But Citizens Dig Them Out

By NOLAND NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Oct. 2 (AP)—British and American troops, feverishly welcomed by the surviving population of Naples, forged on past that devastated city today and fought steadily northward toward Rome and the next defense line of the Germans.

(A Reuters dispatch from Allied headquarters, quoted a military spokesman as saying "the road to Rome is now open. The town of Benevento is directly threatened.")

(He added that the American Fifth Army was "already well north of Naples." Benevento is 32 miles northeast of Naples.)

Allies Making Good Progress

Meeting sharp opposition by German tanks, mortars and machine-guns, the forces of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark were said in a communique to be making good progress, both to the north of the captured port city and to the east.

The British Eighth Army of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, speedily spreading over all the Foggia plain, meanwhile, captured San Severo, 18 miles north of Foggia, and Lucera, 12 miles northwest of that air base center, Allied headquarters announced.

All the Monte Gargano peninsula—the spur of the Italian boot—also has been occupied in a 30-mile advance by Montgomery, a spokesman said.

Allied troops entering the city of Naples, once famed for its beauty, found the waterfront a solid area of ruin, reports from the battlefield said, but the rest of the city was orderly.

Citizens Dig Out Street Mines

Gen. Clark himself entered the city yesterday afternoon, and the first advance patrols which took over the occupation were followed by a steady stream of troops, tanks and vehicles.

A military spokesman said military police had taken over control of the city until local police could be reorganized for the task.

SHOW TICKET SALES SOAR

Ticket sales boomed today for the premiere showing of "This Is The Army," Army Emergency Relief Fund benefit, at the Majestic theater here Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. Walter S. Mountain, chairman of the local committee sponsoring the premiere, said today that all of the $1.65 seats are sold. Only a few $2.20 seats remain while several hundred tickets in the $1.10 block are yet available.

It was announced today that the members of the 55th College Training Detachment at Gettysburg college will parade over the town streets, Monday evening, in the interests of the benefit show and will assemble in front of the theater about 8 o'clock to sing patriotic songs.

Every cent of the receipts from the Monday evening showing of the technical film that has set box office records everywhere it has been shown will go to the Army Emergency Relief Fund, it has been emphasized by the committee in charge.

Formia Attacked

Formia, a coastal city along the ancient Appian way, 44 miles northwest of Naples, also was heavily attacked last night.

Meeting unusual resistance, the Allied air forces lost 14 planes and shot down 11 enemy aircraft, the headquarters announcement said.

The Allied losses included Fortresses and Liberators which did not come back from raids on Munich and Wiener Neustadt in Germany.

Cadets Leave For Southern Camp

Another contingent of aviation students, Flight "E" of the 55th College Training Detachment (Aircrew), Army Air Corps, Gettysburg college, left Gettysburg this morning for a classification center in the south.

The students completed the basic course of their training and will be assigned to advanced fields at the classification center.

GRAVE FAMINE IN INDIA IS OF WORLD CONCERN

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst)

The grave famine on the densely populated eastern seaboard of India, to which this column drew attention a week ago, is reported to have grown worse, with hundreds dying of starvation despite government efforts to expedite importation of foods and grains from foreign countries.

As I reported at that time, there is deep concern over the situation not only among impartial British and Indian quarters but in important American circles. This plague of hunger comes on top of the British-Indian political crisis which has been marked by bloody disturbances during the past year. There is fear that unscrupulous people may be able for ulterior purposes to merge the discontent growing out of these two situations, thereby creating a nasty combination.

The point of American concern is, of course, the fact that India is the arsenal of the Orient and the principal base for the coming offensive against Japan through Burma, across the way from Bengal. American interest is multiplied by the fact that we have heavy military commitments there and are building up a big base for operations against the Japs.

Might Alienate India

Important American military and political people, while not doing public talking on the situation, are anxious that a fresh effort be made to settle the political imbroglio. From their viewpoint a disunited and unhappy India is bound to act as a brake on the efficiency of this great arsenal, even if it's conceded that the British government can keep the lid on and prevent disorders. At best it's an uncomfortable situation. At worst it would be terribly dangerous.

That's not the whole picture, though. If India arrives in the post-war period with the political problem still unsettled — perhaps with the great Indian political leaders like Gandhi still locked up, as they are now—there may be a repercussion which will affect not only the British empire but all the United Nations. Indian resentment might result in alienating this great country with its 400,000,000 people from the Allies of the western world.

"Outside the Charter"

We are fighting Japan to prevent her from making herself mistress of all Asia, and we shall succeed. However, there is another contingency which doesn't seem to be generally recognized, and that is the formation after the war of an Asiatic bloc of nations which feel that they have been left outside the Atlantic Charter of the western Allies. That's no bugbear of the imagination but a very real thing, as I discovered during my trip through the Orient early this year.

One of the questions most persistently asked me was whether the Atlantic Charter applied to the Orient as well as to the west. All the assurances which had been given on this point hadn't convinced the far east that it belonged to the circle of the charter. China was anxious; so was India and other smaller countries of the far and middle east. The old tradition that east is east and west is west made them suspicious.

America Won't Interfere

By the way, the sympathies of the neighboring countries of India and China, with their combined populations of some nine hundred millions—nearly half the population of the world—seem very close. China has given pointed signs in late months that she wants to see India's independence established. Many observers believe that settlement of the Indian political problem would go far towards removing the doubts of the Orient about the intentions of the Atlantic Charter. My investigations in India convinced me that the Indian leaders now would welcome a reopening of the case and would be prepared to compromise on issues which heretofore have precluded a settlement. That being so, the gateway to political peace could be opened if the British government found it possible to reconsider its decision not to resume negotiations until after the war.

America doesn't propose to interfere in the Indian crisis, but I know that many important people in this country would be happy, and relieved, if the case were reopened in the near future.

CLAIMS WOMAN DEFENDANT HAD BOUGHT POISON

Waynesburg, Pa., Oct. 2 (AP)—The defense today began its effort to destroy the web of circumstantial evidence woven by the commonwealth in the trial of 29-year-old Nancy Jeannette Holt, charged with murdering her husband.

The Oklahoma widow became pale and distraught yesterday as she heard four druggists tell how she had purchased and attempted to buy poison in the weeks and even the few days before her husband, Jesse, 33, "big inch" pipeline worker, died in convulsions last May 27.

At one Waynesburg drug store, she was refused a sale, testified Frank Ganier, a clerk.

In the middle of May, he said, a woman he identified as Mrs. Holt entered the store and asked for a certain kind of poison. Ganier continued:

Denied Request

"I told the boss that a blonde with a black eye was out front wanting to buy some poison."

Ganier said the "boss" refused to permit the sale.

Ganier's statement tied up with other state testimony that on May 14 Holt had fought with his wife and blacked her eye.

The State rested its case at the close of the session and Judge Challen W. Waychoff overruled a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

Through most of the day, Mrs. Holt maintained her composure, listening intently to the testimony and whispering an occasional comment to her attorney. Her first sign of nervousness came as druggist after druggist told of poison purchases.

Howard Leckey, pharmacist, said on May 24, three days before Jesse Holt died, Mrs. Holt asked him for some rat poison. He quoted her as saying:

Poisons In Kitchen

"The rats have been playing on the tin roof so much I can't sleep." Leckey said Mrs. Holt asked him if the poison would kill a person and said he replied:

"It will kill anything."

Two other druggists, Glenn W. Headlee and Robert M. Krause, said Mrs. Holt bought poison from them on Feb. 13 and May 26, respectively, saying she wanted to kill some rats.

Professor L. W. Henderson of Waynesburg College testified powder found in the Holt kitchen was 58 per cent poison.

were "the forerunners of our own Declaration of Independence."

"Dangers from Within"

The colony of Connecticut, the speaker pointed out, was governed by a set of rules known as the "Fundamental Orders of Connecticut." They formed the first written constitution which created a government and were retained by Connecticut long after it became a state.

Doctor Portenbaugh emphasized the fact that the sovereignty of the United States is vested in the people and not in the government or states. The people may deny, give or withdraw power to the government, he asserted.

"There is no longer any need for the United States to fear the power of totalitarianism," he declared. "But we must guard against threats from within such as bureaucracy and the exaggeration of the executive power at the expense of the legislative, endangering the just rights of the governed."

At the business session, the chapter authorized the purchase of a $100 war bond in honor of the service honor roll of the chapter. It was decided to contribute $5 for Red Cross overseas kits and $10 for "buddy bags" made and equipped by the chapter for servicemen in hospitals.

Reports on Year's Work

Mrs. R. S. Saby, the chapter regent, who presided at the meeting, read an annual report on the activities of the chapter from October, 1942, to October, 1943.

She stated the chapter members contributed 4,870 hours of work to the Red Cross as executive secretary, office assistant, three surgical dressings chairmen and canteen chairman.

Reported purchases of war bonds and stamps by chapter members totaled $50,000 while members serving at the theater bond booth sold bonds worth $1,500 and stamps amounting to $335. The chapter, during the year, contributed $87 for a blood plasma unit placing the local chapter on the list of chapters participating "100 per cent" in that project. Two $100 bonds have been bought at earlier meetings during the last year. Other contributions to the war effort, to maintain schools and to local organizations amounted to an additional $299, Mrs. Saby said.

Hostesses for the meeting who were present, in addition to Mrs. Huddle, were Mrs. Henry W. A. Hanson, Mrs. Walter Danforth, Mrs. H. D. Sheppard, Mrs. P. J. McGlynn, Mrs. A. Z. Rodgers, Miss Verna Schwartz and Mrs. C. Richard Wolf.

The chapter will meet again in October.

HEAVY HANOVER ELEVEN DOWNS MAROONS 38-0

Hanover high's strong football team lived up to all expectations here Friday night as it rolled over the completely outclassed but hard fighting Gettysburg high eleven 38-0 in a South Penn conference game before approximately 1,500 fans.

The Nighthawks scored in every period while the closest the Maroons got to pay dirt was the 30-yard stripe in the last period when a flock of Hanover reserves were in the lineup.

Coach Age Ealy's heavy outfit used its weight to advantage and had little trouble in pushing the light and inexperienced locals around.

Tallies Thrice
Muselman, who turned in a nice bit of running during the evening, tabbed three touchdowns for the victors.

Midway in the first period Muselman scampered 60 yards to the Maroon five only to have the play called back when a Hanover player was detected holding and the ball was moved back to the Hanover 46. From that point, the Nighthawks marched down field to the three from where Muselman hit the three for his initial touchdown. His placement for the extra point was wide.

Hanover moved 70 yards in quick order early in the second period for its second tally. Muselman racing 30 yards on a right end sweep to score. Rightmire went through the line for the extra point.

Recover Fumble

Late in the period Hanover, aided by three nicely executed passes to Yost, Divinye and Rightmire, moved to the five but on a fumble a flock of Maroon linemen pounced on the ball to give the ball to the Dry-men on the four. Dorsey punted out to the 25 but two plays later Muselman went through the line for 20 yards and a score. Muselman's kick for the point was low.

The second half opened with Howard kicking to Muselman who was downed on his own 35. Reeling off three straight first downs, the Hanover machine moved to the 12 from where Gross went off-tackle for the score. Wentz booted the extra point.

A 15-yard penalty against the invaders gave Gettysburg its first first down midway in the period on the Maroon 42. Hanover braced to take the ball on downs on the 48 and then moved 52 yards for its fifth touchdown. Geiselman going over from the two-yard line as the final period opened. A plunge for the extra point failed.

Maroons Rally
Dorsey and Timbers, who played nice games for the Maroons, gained a first down following the kickoff on two tries to put the ball in mid-field but the spurt died when Wheeler recovered a fumble on the Gettysburg 47.

Geiselman led a hard running attack to put the ball to the one-yard line after three first downs from where Myers plunged through the line to tally. The Maroon line halted Geiselman as he attempted to go through for the extra point. The Maroons vainly tried to score in the dying minutes of the game and reached the Hanover 30 on a pass, Timbers to Little, but the heavy Nighthawk team was equal to the occasion and took over on the 29.

Just before the game ended Epley recovered a fumble on the Gettysburg 45.

Visitors Show Margin

Hanover rolled up 17 first downs, one on a penalty, while Coach Dry's team made three, one on a penalty. The Nighthawks showed a nice passing attack with five completions in seven tries. The Maroons connected on three out of 10 and had one intercepted.

Dorsey and Timbers saved several scores when they caught the Hanover ball-lugger from behind while the former turned in some nice punting.

The defeat proved doubly costly to the Maroons as they lost the services of Pat McGlaughlin, lanky end, who suffered a severely injured right knee early in the second period which will probably keep him out of action for the season.

Pat McGlaughlin Has Leg Fracture

Gettysburg high school's defeat at the hands of the Hanover football team Friday evening proved doubly costly, Patrick McGlaughlin, six-foot three-inch end, suffering a fracture of the right leg above the knee.

McGlaughlin, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McGlaughlin, 135 Buford avenue, was injured on a play early in the second period of the game.

It is expected that McGlaughlin will be confined to the hospital for at least six weeks and will be unable to participate in sports for at least six months. McGlaughlin was slated to jump center for the Maroon basketball team this season.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—Jack Mc-

Auliffe, the first American to fight for the world lightweight title, was a Long Island Irishman. . . . Bobby Ruffin, who'll get a chance for the crown if he whips Beau Jack Monday, also is a Long Island Irishman.

Any other resemblance is not only coincidental but practically invisible. . . . When the demand for $100 war bonds outstripped the supply of clubhouse seats for the races at Belmont today, officials hit upon the solution of moving the iron fence which for a generation or so has separated the club house aristocrats from the ordinary grandstand customers who have to buy only $25 bonds to see the Futurity. . . . simple, isn't it?—and for once we needn't blame them. . . . When the Yanks were playing before a record low of 771 cash customers at the stadium Thursday, more than 23,000 visited Belmont and contributed to the first week-day two million dollar handle on record.

AFTERTHOUGHT

When Charlie Grimm's signature on that 25-year contract to manage the Milwaukee Brewers still was damp, Prexy Bill Veech had a sudden thought. . . . "Charlie," he remarked, "we'll have to have your social security number on this contract. Let's see, you're 45 now. . . . 25 years; that means you'll be 70 when this contract runs out."

JUST TOO NERVOUS

Before last Saturday's Yale-Coast Guard game, Coach Howie Odell of the Ells was too worried about the game to sit still. . . . He decided a little golf might soothe his nerves, went to the New Haven Country club, entered a tournament that was in progress and shot a one-under-par 71 to lead the field.

Harrisburg, Oct. 2 (AP)—The State Council of Defense today re-

PIRATE CHIEF SAYS BASEBALL CERTAIN IN '44

Pittsburgh, Oct. 2 (AP)—William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is confident the major league baseball clubs will operate again next year. In fact, he declared today "I feel more certain about baseball in 1944 than I did about 1943 a year ago."

"A year ago," he explained, "we had some doubt about the reaction of the American public and members of the armed forces to the game."

"But the public has shown," he said, "that it wants baseball. Attendance this year is proof of that. Ours jumped about 10 per cent here this year—and that increase is important when you consider the driving ban, service men who have been removed from the area, and the threatening weather under which half of our home games were played this year."

"Demand The Game"

He said soldiers, sailors and marines—judging by correspondence to him—all demanded the game, and declared "that's why teams are going overseas."

In the first reaction of a league president since the recent edict of the War Manpower Commission definitely classing baseball as non-essential, Benswanger said:

"Of course there may be players in the game now who won't be available next year, but I think there will be enough replacements to carry on." He thought the player picture for 1944 would be similar to this year—a combination of young and old players, and not a swing to one or the other.

By sending teams overseas Benswanger said the government has shown it is behind baseball and commented that he didn't think there would be a recurrence of the baseball situation in 1918, when play stopped Labor day and the world series began.

"Baseball wants to go along as it always has," he said. "It wants to continue to further the war effort, limited only by its physical ability."

Temple Rallies To

Defeat Swarthmore

Philadelphia, Oct. 2 (AP)—Temple's youngsters stemmed a Navybolstered Swarthmore tide last night when they fought their way to a 13-6 decision, scoring all their points in the second half.

The young Owls had a tough time hitting their stride in the first quarter and the Swarthmore team rolled to a touchdown but missed the extra point. Dee Crabtree, substitute quarterback for Swarthmore, scored his team's only touchdown on the first play after he entered the game.

The Garnet came back strong in the second quarter, driving to the Owl's one-foot line on two occasions, but the Temple team held grimly for downs.

The Owlets hit their stride in the opening of the third quarter and sparked by the running and passing of their ace left halfback, Tony Hubka, they scored and tallied the extra point.

An intercepted Garnet pass in the fourth quarter gave the Owls their second chance and they drove for their final score from the Swarthmore 30-yard line. Wilson's conversion try failed.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

"THEY ONLY SEEM TO DIE"

"They only seem to die,
To the unwise!"
Believe it, you and I
And dry our eyes.
After the tolling bells
And pain's release
The Book of Wisdom tells:
"They are in peace."

These are our heroes bold!
Our glorious youth Fighting the right to hold:
Martyrs for truth!
Holding the flag on high Under grim skies.
"They only seem to die,
To the unwise!"

Martyrs for freedom all, Ocean and earth and sky!
Answering danger's call
They only seem to die!
After the cruel strife, After the cannons cease, They gain eternal life,
"They are in peace."

CARRIERS OF HOPE

There is a group of folks in this world that it can ill afford ever to be without. For lack of a better title for them, I would term them the Carriers of Hope.

In Amiel's Journal I came across this inspiring sentence: "A philosophic truth does not become popular until some eloquent soul has humanized it or some gifted personality has translated and embodied it. Pure truth cannot be assimilated by the crowd; it must be communicated by contagion."

How we are inspired by some personalities—personalities that radiate a glow, and lift the spirit of all with whom they come in contact.
The mere entrance of such a one into a crowded room immediately is felt. Call it character magnetized.
Or the mind and heart, washed clean with the soap of truth and God-confidence.

All great leaders are imbued with this heavenly gift. I listened to a gentleman who was once closely associated with General MacArthur and he said that the moment you came in contact with him you knew that you were in the presence of an unusual personality—one that drew you to him and gave you immediate confidence in him and all his ideals.
No wonder our boys and the boys of all nationalities follow his standard wherever he places it! He is a Carrier of Hope.

These same characteristics are to be found in the leadership of Winston Churchill. Grave, daring, determined, and yet, without cheerfulness in his character and acts he embodies both England and every fighter under the British flag.

To be contagiously great one must feed upon that which enriches every fiber in the moral realm. Such examples are always God-fearing men and women. They flay error of its deceit and point to the way beyond the horizon of dying days to those rich in the glory of victory and everlasting betterment. I can think of no finer, or nobler purpose, than to be a Carrier of Hope! Let us all join the ranks.

members of Good Samaritan lodge, Free and Accepted Masons of Gettysburg, their wives, families and friends, attended devotional exercises at the Masonic home at Elizabethtown Sunday afternoon. The service was in charge of the local lodge, and the throng in attendance was the largest in many months.

The sermon for the occasion was preached by Dr. Harvey D. Hoover.
The Rev. Howard S. Fox officiated at the organ and Austin Lang, a college student, sang a solo.

The local sub-station of the state motor patrol furnished an escort for the motorcade from Gettysburg to

KIDNAPT GIRL
SAFE; CAPTOR
STILL AT LARGE

Camden, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP)—Clara Mary Murray, attractive, 26-year-old technician at the Fairview, Pa., State hospital for the criminally insane, was safe here today after spending 29 hours with an inmate of the institution who forced her to accompany him when he escaped Thursday afternoon.

The girl ran into a taproom here last night and gasped to the bartender:

"Please call the police quickly.
I've just escaped from a dangerous man."

Trembling and disheveled the girl later told Detective Captain Augustus Joerner that the inmate, Eugene Caster, 22, formerly of Harrisburg, Pa., forced her to get into her own automobile at the hospital and to stay with him 29 hours.

In the meantime police, scouring the area for a trace of Caster, found Miss Murray's car abandoned on one of the city's streets.

The girl told Koerner that Caster threatened her with a "black automatic" which turned out, when he handed it to her and told her to leave the car last night, to be carried from soap.

After Caster forced her into the car, Miss Murray told detectives, he drove all night through Pennsylvania. They slept in the car and in the morning he permitted her to telephone to her parents in Honesdale, Pa., that she was unharmed.
In Camden earlier in the day, she said, Caster bought a can of black paint and painted the headlights of the car to conform with New Jersey's dimout regulations.

Later they drove to Atlantic City, but Caster decided to return to Camden where he stopped the car half a block from the taproom and handed her the "gun."

Is "Dangerous"

"I'm going to let you go now," she quoted him as saying. "Be sure and tell the police I'm not armed."

Thomas Rutherford, hospital superintendent, said earlier that Caster was "not vicious" but "potentially dangerous." He was transferred to Fairview from Huntingdon, Pa., correctional institution where he had been sentenced on a burglary charge.

Miss Murray appeared to be unharmed, except for shock, police reported. A widespread search is under way for Caster, Koerner said.

East Berlin

East Berlin.—Mrs. Roy E. Smith who underwent a major operation at the Warner hospital, Gettysburg, several weeks ago, is reported to remain in a critical condition. Mrs.
Smith was given a fourth blood transfusion this week.

Corp. Merl Shetter, Washington, D. C., was a visitor this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L.
Shetter and family.

Wayne Reid has been discharged from the York hospital where he had been a surgical patient.

Justin Resser is able to be about again after being ill last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Oberlander and family had as house guests this week the Misses Lois J. Rider and Louise E. Elsesser, of York. Lanny, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Oberlander, has recovered after being ill during the week.

Word has been received here from Richard G. Eustice, a former member of the local high school faculty, that he has been commissioned as a lieutenant in the army and is stationed at Goodfellow Field, San Angelo, Texas. His work deals with meteorology for the Army Air Corps.

Miss Nettie Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Myers, R. 2, is recovering after a sprained foot and multiple abrasions of the face sustained Saturday when she accompanied her father on a business trip to the Mount Holly section.
While they were riding in their auto, trouble developed in the pistons, and the car threatened to catch fire. Miss Myers sustained her injuries when she fell in leaping to safety from the burning car. Mr.
Myers was not injured.

A manufacturing company from Harrisburg has purchased the building here of the former Shellenber-ger sewing factory, and plans to operate a factory for the making of heels for ladies' shoes. Mr. Coxon, of Harrisburg, will be manager and expects to move to this section in the near future.

Bill Oberlander, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Oberlander, has been accepted for duty as an aviation cadet and expects to be called to duty shortly. He is a graduate of the last class of the East Berlin high school. William F. Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hoover, has also been accepted as an aviation cadet.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kroft have received word that their son, Carl Kroft is training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Illinois.

James R. Myers, who has been under medical care for a heart ailment for some time, is reported to be improving.

Amos D. Sower has sold his farm on R. 1, to Ralph E. Myers, Reading township. Mr. Sower expects to continue to occupy the farm house.

Riding with Russell

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

Would you say that your old car is a joke that has gone too far?

This is a good time of the year to stress the point that the greatest cause of overchoking is crankcase dilution, not the mere immediate waste of gasoline. Because so much raw gasoline gets down into the crankcase the engine soon suffers for want of adequate lubrication.

There is camouflaged oil level, the crankcase registering a normal or higher than normal oil level when its contents may be half gasoline.
This results in greatly accelerated engine wear, which in the final analysis means marked lowering in efficiency. Here is where the real gas waste comes into the picture.

Here's What Happened
H. L. N. noted that while the battery could be charged easily enough it would not hold its charge. But there was no real mystery to it. A check-up showed that there was too much electrical equipment on his car, an excess of current being consumed too much of the time.

B. H. K. did a valve grinding job, but later discovered that the valve seats were in bad shape. Going back over the job in detail he revealed that he had used more than 3½ pounds pressure when grinding the valves, causing the compound to cut rings into the valve seats.

Why does a retarded spark cause an increase in gasoline consumption?

Many ask this question. Anticipating a long-winded answer involving technical mysteries they often pass over the query without knowing that its answer merely involves a brief review of fundamentals. They should check back into their primer to recall that the object of firing compressed gas mixture before a piston reaches the top of its stroke is to take into account the fact that gas requires time in which to burn. We thus time the spark to arrive before the pistons get to the top of their compression stroke. We "advance" the timing, actually delivering it ahead of schedule. So if timing is late some of the gas mixture won't have time to burn.

It will pass out through the exhaust as sheer waste. Incidentally, you can usually tell when ignition is retarded by the lazy action of the engine.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"New, live rubber makes for a better ride, but since we can't equip the car with new rubber we must give more attention to the car's spring which are its real shock absorbers. I find from checking over hundreds of war-busy cars that springs are consistently neglected. If owners would simply put their springs back into the shape they were in originally there would be marked improvement in riding comfort and less wear.

"Most leaf springs sag, so that to restore them to their original value it is necessary to re-arch them. This is a process of heat treating. The work should be done by a shop that specializes in spring and frame service. Some springs have inserts which provide inter-leaf lubrication;
hundreds of war-busy cars that out road shock and to keep friction more constant. When a spring is rebuilt it should receive the same attention it got when it was prepared for assembly. Coil springs need less attention, but it is a fact that where the rear leaf springs are not working normally they adversely affect the front coils."

If Engine Won't Pull

At this time of year a common complaint is that the engine starts well enough but won't pull. This is likely due to leaky valves which lower compression excessively. A weak spark will also check pulling power by causing the engine to miss.
An overrich mixture is also a power killer. You'll know it by black smoke from the exhaust.

If it becomes necessary to file the piston ring ends for a wider gap the job can be simplified by placing each ring on a block of wood. Drive nails into the wood at various places around the inside and outside of the ring so as to provide a means of holding it in place. Then file. In this way there is no risk of getting the rings out of shape.

Two Worth Knowing

Lost pressure can be restored to a weak piston ring by peening it. This is a process of tapping it skillfully with a special hammer.

If the clutch is going to be pulled down anyway because of need for a new plate to check excessive chattering and grabbing, better start in second. There will be less chatter in this gear, and by eliminating low for the start there will be one less period of chatter for each start. This will save the rear end some of the strain which it need not bear until the clutch is serviced.

So-called gasoline boosters, or gas "additives," should be used with care, due to the fact that they have a solvent action and may stir up a lot of sediment in the gas tank.
Such sediment would naturally travel along to the fuel pump and filter where it would give trouble unless cleaned out frequently. If gas boosters do nothing more than focus attention on the need for draining dirty gas tanks they will have served a good purpose. There's no better time, for draining tanks than now for water in the bottom of a tank can give a lot of trouble in cold weather.

Can't Shut It Off

Every so often some reader rushes to the mailbox to let me know that he is having trouble switching off the engine of his car. There are two possible reasons why an engine will run after the switch is turned to the off position, and it is well for every driver to know how to tell one from the other. If, for example, the engine continues to run, and fires regularly, then the switch is defective. But if the running is irregular then it is due to preignition, hot particles of carbon, or even the overheated engine parts themselves, firing the mixture. In either case the engine can be stopped by putting the car in gear, with brake on, and stalling it.

Those who through force of necessity are obliged to do their own valve work these days should keep in mind that grinding causes a change in tappet clearances. This is due to the fact that as a valve seats deeper its stem takes up clearance. In the case of one of the older cars which has no adjustment for tappets it is often necessary to grind off some of the valve stem to restore normal clearance. In all other cases an adjustment is all that is necessary. This may seem like a detail, but take it from those who have lived and learned the mere act of overlooking this matter has ruined an otherwise good valve grinding job. For if there isn't normal tappet clearance the freshly ground valves may hold open when heat causes normal valve stem expansion. A burned valve is worse than a dirty one.

Q. I have made a careful inspection of the carburetor, and have tried various adjustments, but the mixture still continues to be too lean. The float level is properly adjusted, and there seems to be nothing wrong with the float's action.
Could it be the gas? F. L. H.

A. Look for an air leak around the intake manifold.

Q. The starter-motor on my car will work but I can't get any ignition, lighting or horning. When I turn on any of the switches the ammeter falls to register. Please let me hear from you by return mail. H. L.

A. For the benefit of other readers I want to tell you in print, in addition to my special delivery reply, that your trouble is either with the ammeter itself or with an open circuit between the starter-motor connection and the ammeter. Current goes direct from the battery to the starter motor post, the rest of the electrical circuit continuing from there.

Q. How wasteful is idling? I have been shutting off the engine as much as possible but some drivers tell me that this offers no advantage. C. S.

A. Some tests show that one and one-half ounces of gasoline are consumed in one minute of idling. This is approximately three-quarters of a gallon an hour. I believe this is high. Since an engine tends to load up when re-started hot it is not economical to keep switching off the ignition every time the car stops for a traffic light. The unconscious process of pumping on the accelerator pedal wastes gasoline through the carburetor's acceleration pump, and it is difficult to restart this temptation when the engine fails to re-start immediately.

Q. Would you advise having the octane selector set toward the minus side in order to compensate for the lower octane gasoline we now get?

G. R. E.

A. No; the engine's ignition timing tends to go late anyway.

tion of your car. Just address him
